China - Hong Kong

June 2016

This research was done for a 3 day trip at the end of 2015 and has had some updates in 2016, but please note this list will not be maintained. Hopefully it will get you started with your trip planning - I think I was so worried about eating in Hong Kong that I spent more time on this research than I actually spent being there!

I did not eat at most of these places, so as always, make your own enquiries first.

Tips:

- Always ask to have food cooked without soy sauce and MSG
- Always go for plain boiled rice
- Translation cards - you are advised to take both Mandarin and Cantonese. Mandarin is the official language of China, but Cantonese is spoken by a large percentage of people in Hong Kong.
- To get more up to date information, I suggest you join the Facebook group 'Gluten Free in Hong Kong'

For my experiences, please see the link below:
